Important information for the speakers and chairwomen and chairmen

The duration of the papers is strictly limited to 20 minutes.

It is insistently asked to the speakers, to the chairwomen and chairmen to make sure that the papers won't be longer than 20 minutes.

This is a question of elementary politeness towards the other speakers, towards the organisers of the conference and towards the audience.

The official language of the SIHDA is French. It is thus asked to the chairwomen and chairmen to open and close the working sessions in French. For the rest, linguistic courtesy should prevail. Tradition says that papers may also be given in Italian, German, English and Spanish. May we remind you though, that the audience being international, the rules of courtesy imply that if the speaker addresses his paper in his mother tongue, he is asked to adapt the speed of his speech to a public that does not speak his language. This adaptation must of course be considered also in order to respect the 20 minutes rule.
